

LAST EDITION.
SLEW HER BROTHER.

William H. McGinn Struck His Sister, Mrs. Mary Himpler.

Then He Offered Her a Knife and She Stabbed Him.

A Brooklyn Christmas Party Ends with a Tragedy.

A young woman, who would have been comely but for three ugly bruises on her face, sat in a cell this morning in the Stagg street police station, Brooklyn, nursing a nine-months-old infant and sighing heavily now and again as she thought of the terrible charge against her.

She was charged with murder—the murder of her brother—and she could make no denial of it. With his own knife, she had stabbed him to death by himself in a drunken spirit of bravado, after he had brutally struck her with his fist, she had stabbed him to the heart.

The prisoner was Mrs. Mary Himpler, the wife of a laboring man, 75 Morris street, Brooklyn, E. D. Her brother, William Henry McGinn, whom she killed, was an iceman when he worked, but for some time he had made his home with her and paid but little for his board.

Mrs. Himpler's husband had objected to supporting this brother, but she always made excuses for him, although he had exhausted her patience and was frequently upbraided for late for his idleness.

Last night the brother and sister attended a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Mary Wiegand, 165 Stagg street. Mrs. Himpler carried her young babe in her arms. The Wiegands have eight children and are miserably poor, but they provided a keg of beer for their guests, and the whole party became intoxicated.

About 10 o'clock McGinn became ugly and quarrelsome. His sister remonstrated with him. He was not in the mood to accept her reproaches for his behavior, and struck her three violent blows in the face, one of which cut her lip badly.

After coming from the mouth and embittered by the ingratitude shown by her brother, Mrs. Himpler cried out:

"Oh, if you weren't my brother I'd kill you!"

"You would, eh?" was his reply, as reaching into his pocket he drew out a two-bladed jack-knife. Then opening the large blade, sharpened to a point, he tauntingly held it towards her, saying:

"You'd kill me, would you? Well, do it, anyhow. See, I'll throw up my hands and give you a good chance!"

With this he threw both arms up over his head and clasped his hands.

"Now, kill me if you want to."

His sister had her baby in her arms, struggling to the quick by her brothers actions she dropped the child, and grasping the knife, plunged the blade into her brother's breast.

As she drew it out he snatched the knife from her, and with a shriek of pain struck her again in the face and rushed out of the house, leaving a trail of blood behind him.

Horror-stricken, the women gathered about the sister, who fell back in a chair shrieking:

"I've done it now. You all see I've done it!"

McGinn staggered across the street, dropping the knife on his way, and lurched into Wiegand's drug store on the corner of Stagg and Morris streets.

With blood pouring out of his mouth and nose McGinn pitched against the prescription case and fell among the broken glass and contents of the showcase.

Before an ambulance arrived Capt. Lyons and Detective Sergs. Campbell and Enns had sent McGinn to St. Catherine's Hospital in the patrol wagon. He died a few minutes after he reached the hospital.

When the police entered the Wiegand apartments the women had disappeared. Detective Campbell went to Mrs. Himpler's home at 75 Morris street and knocked at the door.

Receiving no answer he kicked in the door. Mrs. Himpler was nursing her baby and three men of the Christmas party were huddled with her behind the breaking up of the festivities.

Mrs. Himpler did not know her brother was dead when she was placed in a cell at the Stagg street station.

In a short time the police had arrested John Wiegand, Mary Wiegand and Annie Wiegand, of 165 Stagg street, Frank Bender, Emma Bender and Emma McGinn, of 75 Morris street, and Kate Miller, of 107 Vero street.

They were all present at the Christmas party and witnessed the stabbing. Coroner Lindsay arrived and took their statements, which in the main agreed with the story told above.

Mrs. Himpler's mother-in-law came in as the statement was being taken. Approaching her daughter-in-law, listening stolidly to the witness' stories, she said:

"I hear that Billy is dead. Was he injured?"

Mrs. Himpler did not seem affected by the news that she was a murderer, and replied:

"Yes, he was injured in the Hancock Insurance Company, but I was eight weeks bedridden. The agent said he'd wait another week or so, then he'd come."

She was admitted to the Coroner that the stories of the stabbing were correct, and simply said:

"He brought it on himself."

She was locked in a cell with her baby, and shortly after 9 o'clock this morning fell into a sound sleep.

Her husband visited her at 7 o'clock, but their meeting was as indifferent as though McGinn had been a stranger.

McGinn was twenty-seven years old. Mrs. Himpler is twenty-three.

Coroner Lindsay committed her to Raymond street jail to await the result of the inquest, and she was taken there shortly before noon.

CITY NEWS TOLD IN BRIEF.
Notable Occurrences in This City and Its Vicinity.

Paragraphs that Photograph the History of a Day.

Brooklyn Wife-Beater Held.
James McConnell, of 86 Jay street, Brooklyn, was held in the Adams street police court this morning charged with severely beating his wife Maggie last night.

British Nobles in Town.
Col. T. Pryn, of the British Army, and Lady G. W. Watson, wife of Admiral Watson, R. N., arrived this morning from Bermuda on the steamer Trinidad.

Died on the Steamship Danla.
Frederick W. Gunther, a steamer passenger, a native of Germany, aged fifty-three years, died last evening on board the steamer Danla, from Hamburg, of phthisis.

Shot Himself in the Chin.
Antonietta, a Spanish woman, twenty years old, of 539 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, was found this morning with a wound in the throat, which she had inflicted on herself with a razor.

The March Grand Jury.
Henry M. Taber, a cotton merchant of 141 Pearl street, was chosen foreman of the March Grand Jury, which was sworn in today before Recorder Smith in Part I. General Sessions.

Mysterious Fire in a Flat.
A fire of mysterious origin broke out at 8 o'clock this morning on the stairs of a four-story flat at 305 West One Hundred and Nineteenth street. It was put out before any damage had been done.

Knocked Down by a Team of Horses.
Twenty-year-old Matthew McCafferty, of 14 Liberty street, was knocked down by a team of horses at the corner of Myrtle and Pearl streets this morning and received severe injuries. He was sent to Chambers street hospital.

Survives a Fall of 50 Feet.
James McKee, an iron worker, of 305 East Twenty-third street, fell this morning from a scaffold in the building on the southeast corner of Nineteenth street and Fourth avenue, a distance of 50 feet, to the ground and was severely injured.

Highwayman Versus Chinaman.
Lee Hupp, a Chinese laundryman of 32 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, was knocked down by a highwayman shortly after midnight this morning at the corner of Myrtle and Pearl streets, and was robbed of $15. His assailant escaped.

Fireman Delaney's Injuries Fatal.
Fireman Patrick Delaney, of Engine Company 20, located in Stone street, died last night at his home, 69 Pearl street, from injuries received several months ago by falling from the sillings of a building on the southeast corner of Nineteenth street and Fourth avenue, a distance of 50 feet, to the ground and was severely injured.

Supposed to Have Died of Typhus.
Dr. Donohue, of 208 West One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street, notified the Coroner's office today that a child had died at 301 West One Hundred and Forty-third street, whose parents, a Chinese and a white woman, were unable to determine the cause of death. It is thought to have been typhus fever.

Lost His Pocketbook While Asleep.
Capt. John Smith, of the sleep Johnson, lying at the foot of West Fifty-ninth street, charged Lottie Dwyer, of 31 Pike street, in the Tombs court today with having stolen his pocketbook, containing $70, while he was asleep in her room Sunday night. She was held.

Says He Is Prince Bismarck.
William Anders, a lunatic, this morning attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a penknife in his room at 343 Broadway street. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, where his wounds were treated to be healed. He told the police he was Prince Bismarck.

Amy Lee Will Get Her Divorce.
After being separated from her husband, Frank Owens, of Leadville, Col., for over a year, Amy Lee, the divorcee, has now agreed to get a divorce, as her husband promised not to molest her. The couple were married four years ago in Jersey City.

Caught in Her Mistress's Clothes.
Margie McGuire was held in the Butler street (Brooklyn) Police court this morning, charged with having stolen $50 worth of clothing from her mistress, Mrs. Lawrence Ford, of 201 Van Brunt street. She was caught leaving the house at 1 o'clock this morning wearing a silk dress and other clothing belonging to Mrs. Ford.

Bit Storekeeper and Policeman.
James O'Callahan, of 307 West Twelfth street, assaulted Patrick Gleason, proprietor of the cigar store at 487 Sixth avenue, this morning, biting his thumb and cheek when Police Officer of the West Thirtieth street squad attempted to arrest him. O'Callahan said the officer severely beat him, and the officer had his wounds dressed by an ambulance surgeon.

He Accuses His Landlady.
Michael Wengert, a waiter who boards with Mrs. Fanny Silverman at 53 Suffolk street, testified in the Essex Market court this morning that he saw his landlady enter his room yesterday night and set fire to her clothing. She denied the theft, but Justice Kilbreth held her for trial.

Stole a Surgeon's Instruments.
Frank Bally, an Irish boy, stole a case containing $135 worth of surgical instruments from the carriage of Dr. Samuel Murt, land, of 349 West Thirtieth street, last night, and in the Tombs court today was held for trial.

Clerk Beat Returns to Duty.
Major Grant's confidential clerk, George E. Best, today returned from New Orleans, where he had been absent for several days on account of illness. He returned on his arrival that there was to be a very interesting athletic contest between two gentlemen named Maher and Fitzsimmons, and it is said to have been much interested in that event as in the car.

Brooklyn Cured Hunchback for Mrs. F. E. Kline.
A hunchback, who had been a great nuisance to his neighbors, was cured of his deformity by the use of a certain medicine, and is now a well-to-do man.

TORY DEFEAT IN THE COUNTY.
London Papers Think It Won't Bear on the General Elections.

Members of the Council.

Uneasy Workmen in Lelpale—General Foreign News.

London, March 7.—The final returns of the elections for members of the London County Council, which were held on Saturday last, show the return of an overwhelming majority of Progressives and Liberals.

The new Council will consist of eighty-four Progressives and thirty-four Moderates or Conservatives.

Among the Conservatives elected is the Duke of Norfolk, one of the largest landowners of London, who is bitterly opposed to the so-called Socialistic tendencies of the Liberal members of the Council.

The Times says: "The workingman has risen in his strength, while nobody else has risen to any extent, under the ballot, of which, as a fetish of modern civilization, we must be understood to speak with all due respect. It is impossible to be certain of the cause of anything that depends upon voting. Unfortunately, the Moderates had no leader. The hope remains that the Progressives will be strong enough to display their wide differences and split into opposing sections. As regards the bearing on politics, we believe many political Unionists are Progressives in municipal matters."

The Standard reproduces the Moderates for lack of energy in organization.

It contends that as the Progressive victory in 1888 followed the Conservative victory in the general election of 1885, the result of Saturday's election has no bearing upon politics.

LILLIAN RUSSELL'S REVENGE.
She Bounces Attalie Claire from "La Cigale."

Sequel to the Sloggers' Dispute Over Stage Followers.

A Boston despatch this morning states that "Avery Fair" Lillian Russell, the star of the "La Cigale" company, has at last secured her revenge on Miss Attalie Claire, her leading lady, by summarily discharging her.

The particulars are very meagre, but it is known that the pretty butterfly of the play accomplished her conquest yesterday on receiving a cablegram from Manager Henry French, who is now in Europe, instructing her to take such action in the matter as she deemed best.

The result was that Miss Russell, who was in the city yesterday, engaged Miss Grace Golden, a well-known Casino favorite, to take Miss Claire's place as the "ant" in Audran's operatic interpretation of La Fontaine's fable, and the two left for Boston this morning.

Miss Golden began the study of the part at once, and will appear at the Hub tomorrow evening, when Claire will be told to make her exit with five weeks' salary, which would carry her to the end of her season.

The trouble between Lillian and Attalie was caused by the latter receiving much handsome and more expensive floral gifts than her superior, which were said to have been presented to her by Alfred Kaye, a wealthy Columbia College senior, and his friends, who attended the theatre and offered to the fair Lillian, it is said, had become a source of fatigue and annoyance.

Young Kaye and his college friends followed the "La Cigale" company to Boston at the close of its engagement at the Garden Theatre and delighted the Boston management by dragging a gigantic floral cartload from the city of the Globe Theatre as an offering to Miss Claire.

But it didn't stay there. The fair Lillian was furious, she threatened to sue, and wouldn't even allow Miss Claire to receive it in her dressing-room.

Mr. Kaye and his friend, however, were equal to the occasion, and hired a window directly across from the theatre, where they displayed the flowers, and the reason why the place was not a theatre.

In the evening they threw big bouquets from their boxes to Miss Claire, and Lillian waxed more wrath than ever. Miss Claire's remarks in the newspapers, she made no pretensions to equality with Miss Russell, and she was not a social snob, so she didn't help matters one bit.

Now Lillian has her revenge.

NO BAIL FOR WEBSTER.
Judge Cowing Denies the Motion for Lack of Jurisdiction.

Does This, He Says, Without Prejudice to the Defendant's Case.

Webster Talks About His Secret Marriage in the Tombs.

Judge Cowing sat beside Judge Fitzgerald on the bench when the latter opened the March Term of Part III. of the Court of General Sessions today.

Judge Cowing was present to hear the argument on the motion of William F. Howe that Burton C. Webster be admitted to bail pending a second trial of the indictment against him for the killing of Charles K. Goodwin in the Percival apartment house Aug. 2 last.

Webster was not brought into court, but Evelyn Granville was there and received the congratulations of a number of people on an event which is spoken of later in this column.

Mr. Howe said:

"My motion is to admit to bail a defendant accused of homicide, on which charge a trial was had and the jury disagreed. I ask simply that Your Honor fix bail for Burton C. Webster."

"The trial occupied nine days and the jury deliberated nineteen hours, and the result—its an open secret—was that no less than two-thirds of that jury, eight in number, were for acquittal, one was for manslaughter, and only three were for conviction of murder in the first degree."

"Eight men under oath have held, after a long trial—and I have never seen a case in which the trial was carried on on the part of the people with more intelligence—that the defendant was justified."

"The defendant has already been nine months in prison. I know the District Attorney's office has said that Webster will be tried again in a couple of weeks; that the failure to agree was a disappointment, and that the public demands his punishment. But as a matter of fact the public demands his release."

THE MOTION DENIED.

Judge Cowing waved Prosecutors Stapler and McIntyre to silence and said:

"I know the merits of this case perfectly, and I know the custom in such cases. But the statute seems to say that no Judge has the power to admit to bail a defendant charged with murder in the first degree except a Judge of the Oyer and Terminer or of the Supreme Court."

"In denying your motion I do it on these grounds and without prejudice, so that you may apply to a Supreme Court Judge if you so desire."

"I deny your motion for want of power to grant it."

"Fair to the last!" exclaimed Mr. Howe fervently.

Webster arose and went away, disconsolate.

Webster's lawyers must now bring the matter before a Justice of the Supreme Court to have the indictment set aside, and this step will probably be taken in the near future.

Mr. Howe drew up the necessary papers to get a writ of habeas corpus for Webster, returnable before Justice Andrews in Supreme Court, Chambers, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

WEBSTER MARRIED IN THE TOMBS.

Another sensational disclosure is now made in the already highly-charged affair of Webster-Granville-Goodwin and unnamed others.

It is no less than the filing with the Registrar of Vital Statistics of a certificate of the marriage of Burton Cuthbert Webster and Evelyn Granville.

The marriage took place on the afternoon of Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, and Mrs. M. A. Hughes and C. A. Colby signed the certificate as witnesses.

The couple were married in the Tombs Prison, and the ceremony was performed by Justice Peter Mitchell.

Burton Webster was also present, sleeping in the arms of Mrs. Hughes, while his legitimacy was being firmly established according to the laws of the State of New York and of every civilized country in the world.

This marriage by a Justice was kept a profound secret during the trial of Webster. Under the red-hot fire of Cross-Examination, the cool and nervy Webster, once came very near being betrayed into announcing it, but it did not come out until the trial was over.

Webster testified on the trial that the property of the deceased was in the hands of the family, and that he was not a party to the murder.

Webster's approaching matrimony became known to him by suggestion to a priest. She was delighted, but found an awkward difficulty in the necessity of a special dispensation from the Archbishop, for Webster had been married and divorced in Chicago, and the Catholic Church, looking upon marriage as a holy sacrament, refuses to recognize divorces.

Then Webster proposed a marriage by a Justice, and Evelyn Granville accepted to him, and an alternative. When the matter was brought to Webster's counsel, Peter Mitchell, the latter informed him that he, as a civil Justice, had the right to unite them in a marriage that would be recognized in every State in the Union.

On Feb. 22 Evelyn Granville, radiantly gay, repaired to the Tombs in a bridal gown of dark Henrietta cloth, trimmed with glistering beads.

Justice Mitchell performed the ceremony. Mr. Colby and Mrs. Hughes and the baby accompanied her, and "Burt" Webster came down to the law-studded council-room, dressed with exceeding care.

While the busy keepers closed up to the grated door to guard against any improper outbreak, Justice Mitchell gathered the bride party close up under the barred and dingy window opposite and then, with right hands clasped,

"EVENING WORLD" ILLUSTRATED PROVERBS—XIV.

SILVER STIRS UP DISPUTE.
Its House Advocates Press the Bland Bill for Debate.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—Before the reading of the House Journal today, Mr. Catherings, of Mississippi, called up the resolution setting apart three days for the consideration of the silver bill, and the clerk proceeded to read it. Upon its adoption Mr. Catherings demanded the previous question.

Mr. Tracy, of New York, called attention to the fact that the Journal had not been read. The speaker declared it was in order for the gentleman from Mississippi to call up the resolution.

Mr. Dingler—Then the Chair decides that business can be done before the reading of the Journal?

The speaker—The Chair so decides.

Mr. Tracy—I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

Mr. Tracy and his colleague, Mr. Filch (N. Y.) vigorously protested against the ruling of the speaker, which was defended by Mr. Bland (Mo.), and a very warm colloquy ensued between Mr. Tracy and the speaker on the right of the former gentleman to call up the resolution.

Mr. Bland in his remarks referred to a conversation he had had with Mr. Catherings (N. Y.) and Mr. Andrew (Mass.) in which these gentlemen had stated that if the consideration of the resolution were postponed until today there would be no filibustering on the part of the anti-silver men, and he charged those anti-silver men with bad faith.

To this charge Mr. Catherings made a fiery denial.

TWO GIRL KIDNAPERS HELD.
Annie Brutzer Positively Identified as a Counterfeit Shaver.

A strong case was made today against the girls Lena Hill and Annie Brutzer, who were arrested in Jersey City Saturday night for attempting to pass a bad silver dollar on Jas. W. Davidson, of Brunswick and Wayne streets.

At the hearing before United States Commissioner Honorable Philip Carter, further testimony was given by the merchant who had received bad silver from women answering the description of the prisoners.

Brutzer, a barmaid and various fancy articles were found in Lena Hill's suitcase.

James H. Best, a clerk in George T. Campbell's drug store, at 40 Montague street, testified that he had seen the girls in his store, and offered him a bad silver dollar in payment for five cents' worth of pills.

The girls were taken from their East Fifth street home, New York, and they denied guilt. They were remanded for further examination next Monday.

COAL BARONS DELAY INQUIRY.
McLeod Notified to Appear or He Will Be Prosecuted.

Senator McMahon was the only member of the Senate investigating committee who appeared at the Hotel Metropole this morning to continue the inquiry into the coal combine.

None of the five persons for whom subpoenas were issued on Saturday were present, as the police had not been served.

Senator McMahon wrote to President McLeod of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, and also to Messrs. Baker and Naylor, who replaced Russell, sag and Sidney Dillon in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Directors, to be present at the committee meeting next Saturday morning. If they fail to appear the committee will prosecute them legally.

BIG SEIZURE OF FINE GOWNS.
Two Trunks Full Said to Belong to Kate Kelly.

Col. Carey, chief of survey of Lyon's staff of inspectors in the seizure, yesterday of the trunks of seven ladies passengers on the French liner, La Bourgogne.

The goods are sufficient to stock a first-class dressmaking establishment, and are estimated to be worth several thousand dollars.

Two of the trunks belong to Kate Kelly, in this city, and two are said to be the property of women connected with Kate Kelly, a tailor dressmaker, at 277 Fifth avenue.

The housekeeping of her manager in Chicago last week had for a suspicion that she was engaged in smuggling.

TWO ABANDONED SCHOONERS.
Both Were Sighted Within Fifty Miles of Cape Hatteras.

The Norwegian ketch Gungun arrived here today from Pallas, eighty days out. She had a rough voyage.

On Feb. 25, when thirty-five miles off Hatteras, Capt. Hansen reports, she passed the schooner Wesley Johnson waterlogged and abandoned.

On the next day, fifty miles off Hatteras, she passed another abandoned schooner. She was a white bark, and had a crew of about twenty men. Her name was Mary, from Philadelphia, and her owner was John W. Sterling, a merchant in New York.

GEN. LITTLEFIELD A FUGITIVE.
His Bail Bond Forfeited and a War-rant Out for Him.

Gen. Milton J. Littlefield, whose trial on an indictment charging him with grand larceny in taking a bribe of $5,000 in connection with the trial of the trunk of the French liner, La Bourgogne, today, failed to appear in General Sessions when his name was called.

Recorder Smith thereupon ordered that Littlefield's bail be forfeited, and then he issued a bench warrant for the defendant's arrest. Mrs. Henrietta Talcott, of West Fifty-seventh street, was $5,000 bail for Littlefield.

SHOT HIMSELF IN THE HEAD.
Suicide of a Young Collector for an Italian Newspaper.

Leonido Scharchette, twenty-four years old and a collector for an Italian newspaper, committed suicide this morning in his room at the Hotel Metropole by shooting himself in the head.

It is said that he was in trouble over a charge in his paper, and that he had been ill for some weeks, and that he had been subjected to a great deal of trouble and anxiety. He had been working for the paper for some time, and was well liked by his colleagues.

GEN. LITTLEFIELD A FUGITIVE.
His Bail Bond Forfeited and a War-rant Out for Him.

Gen. Milton J. Littlefield, whose trial on an indictment charging him with grand larceny in taking a bribe of $5,000 in connection with the trial of the trunk of the French liner, La Bourgogne, today, failed to appear in General Sessions when his name was called.

Recorder Smith thereupon ordered that Littlefield's bail be forfeited, and then he issued a bench warrant for the defendant's arrest. Mrs. Henrietta Talcott, of West Fifty-seventh street, was $5,000 bail for Littlefield.

BUTNER'S CHILD DEAD.
Another Affliction has fallen upon the unfortunate wife of William H. Butner.

Another affliction has fallen upon the unfortunate wife of William H. Butner, the lawyer convicted of obtaining fraudulent divorces and now serving a sentence in Sing Sing for the same crime. His wife, who was a devoted and loving mother, died this morning of a heart attack, and was buried in the cemetery at Westchester.

The wife of Mr. Butner was a devoted and loving mother, and her death is a great loss to the family. She was a very kind and generous woman, and her death is a great loss to the community.

LAST EDITION.
ROASTED HER ALIVE.

Jealous Richard Scanlon Threw a Lighted Lamp at His Wife.

The Missile Exploded and Enveloped Her in Flames.

Dying She Sobbed: "Oo, Dick, I Was Not Unfaithful."

Mrs. Kate Scanlon, a once handsome woman, died in terror agony in the New York Hospital at 6:30 o'clock this morning. Her husband, Richard, whom the police charge with being responsible for the woman's death, is under arrest. Michael Scanlon, Richard's brother, is also a prisoner by way he is held, unless it be as a witness, is not quite clear to neighbors of the family.

The Scanlons lived at 441 West Sixteenth street. Richard had for a long time been jealous of Michael, who boarded with him and who he believed had despoiled his home. Richard sought to surprise the supposed guilty party, and left his home early last evening saying that he should not return during the night. He had returned around in the neighborhood at 11:30 o'clock, at which time the lights were lowered in the third-floor apartments occupied by the Scanlons.

Then the husband ran upstairs and rapped on the door of his wife's bedroom. There was a momentary delay, and then Mrs. Scanlon, who was sitting up in bed, opened the door. The husband rushed in, and the wife, who was in a state of alarm, tried to close the door. The husband, who was in a state of rage, threw a lighted lamp at the wife, and the lamp exploded, and the wife was enveloped in flames.

Michael Scanlon immediately accused his wife of infidelity. He presented the accusation with a great deal of evidence, and then he threatened to kill her. She was in a state of terror, and she sobbed and cried for help.

Mrs. Scanlon sought to pacify him, when he threw a lighted lamp at her, and she was enveloped in flames. The lamp exploded, and the wife was enveloped in flames. She was in a state of terror, and she sobbed and cried for help.

There was a fearful cry of horror and then another cry of horror, and then the wife was seen to be in a state of alarm, and she was in a state of terror, and she sobbed and cried for help.

Officer Samuel Watzfelder, of the West Twenty-third street police station, who was on duty at the time, saw the wife in a state of alarm, and he was in a state of terror, and he sobbed and cried for help.

John Wiegand, who was on duty at the time, saw the wife in a state of alarm, and he was in a state of terror, and he sobbed and cried for help.

John Wiegand, who was on duty at the time, saw the wife in a state of alarm, and he was in a state of terror, and he sobbed and cried for help.

MR. SPRINGER'S GOOD NIGHT.
No Reappearance of the Alarming State of Coma.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At 5:30 o'clock one of the persons who watched at the bedside all night said that Mr. Springer had passed a peaceful night and had taken considerable nourishment.

There had been no recurrence of the coma. The three physicians held a long consultation at 11 o'clock this morning and gave out a bulletin that Mr. Springer's condition was much improved.

Congressman Kendall Stricken.
Washington, March 7.—Representative John W. Kendall, of Kentucky, was suddenly stricken with apoplexy this morning, and now lies in a critical condition at his residence on Madison street. His case appears as if every effort would be made to save him.

"THE WORLD'S" REAL ESTATE INDEX is a novelty.

SIGNED BY THE GOVERNOR.
Police Pension Amendment and Other Acts Become Laws.

ALBANY, March 7.—The Governor has signed the following bills:

Amending the New York Consolidation act relative to the police pension fund. (Senator Hagans' bill as to pension for retiring superintendents.)

Providing for a State tax of 22-100 mills for ordinary repairs and maintenance of the public works for the next fiscal year.

Confirming the incorporation of the New York Automobile Club.

Authorizing the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to New York City to lease city property for the purpose of raising money for the redemption of the city bonds.

James W. Husted and John W. Sterling are named as incorporators of the Association.

CLEAR, COMPACT, CATCHY, COMPREHENSIVE.

THE WORLD'S Real Estate Index.

Weather Forecasts.

For the week ending March 13, 1892. Fair, stationary temperature; mostly cloudy. For Tuesday increasing clouds; showers, with light rain. For Wednesday conditions favorable for rain. For Thursday conditions favorable for rain. For Friday conditions favorable for rain. For Saturday conditions favorable for rain. For Sunday conditions favorable for rain.

Weather Forecasts.

For the week ending March 13, 1892. Fair, stationary temperature; mostly cloudy. For Tuesday increasing clouds; showers, with light rain. For Wednesday conditions favorable for rain. For Thursday conditions favorable for rain. For Friday conditions favorable for rain. For Saturday conditions favorable for rain. For Sunday conditions favorable for rain.

Weather Forecasts.

For the week ending March 13, 1892. Fair, stationary temperature; mostly cloudy. For Tuesday increasing clouds; showers, with light rain. For Wednesday conditions favorable for rain. For Thursday conditions favorable for rain. For Friday conditions favorable for rain. For Saturday conditions favorable for rain. For Sunday conditions favorable for rain.

Weather Forecasts.

For the week ending March 13, 1892. Fair, stationary temperature; mostly cloudy. For Tuesday increasing clouds; showers, with light rain. For Wednesday conditions favorable for rain. For Thursday conditions favorable for rain. For Friday conditions favorable for rain. For Saturday conditions favorable for rain. For Sunday conditions favorable for rain.

Weather Forecasts.

For the week ending March 13, 1892. Fair, stationary temperature; mostly cloudy. For Tuesday increasing clouds; showers, with light rain. For Wednesday conditions favorable for rain. For Thursday conditions favorable for rain. For Friday conditions favorable for rain. For Saturday conditions favorable for rain. For Sunday conditions favorable for rain.

Weather Forecasts.

For the week ending March 13, 1892. Fair, stationary temperature; mostly cloudy. For Tuesday increasing clouds; showers, with light rain. For Wednesday conditions favorable for rain. For Thursday conditions favorable for rain. For Friday conditions favorable for rain. For Saturday conditions favorable for rain. For Sunday conditions favorable for rain.